

Speed up your sprints

Digital transformation comes to work.

Holistic. Faster.

Digital transformation with classix.

Information overload

Hardly any information, which is not digitised yet.

From Excel files, special solutions, an ERP backbone system, over to machine data from your or your customers's shop floor, up to all information available in the world wide web: the amount of information and the complexity of data is growing rapidly and continuously.

Mobile end devices lead to further digitisation of business processes. The number of information systems increases constantly.

Digitisation alone comes to its limits. A growing number of isolated applications and the interfaces inbetween causes costs to grow exponentially and the holistic view of the enterprise vanishes. It becomes more and more difficult to utilise technical improvements timely.

Digital transformation

Digital transformation means to get the big picture. From all information available one must find and extract only that data, relevant and essential for your business. This data must then be consolidated according to your business model. Business processes must be modelled beyond borders, while new requirements must be integrated seamlessly.

Furthermore, speed of transformation is crucial, as businesses must keep up with technological progress. Technical innovation and improvements must be deployed instantaneously.

This challenge of true digital transformation can only be mastered with the use of an advanced platform.
